

Understanding domestic abuse: findings from On Track

On Track, everything services need to support survivors and evidence the outcomes that survivors value

On Track is the Women's Aid case management and outcomes monitoring programme which launched nationally in April 2016. It enables domestic abuse services to drive up the quality of their provision, strengthen the support provided to women and their children and evidence the value and impact of their service. All during the course of their everyday work.

On Track was developed in consultation with survivors, members, academics and commissioners. The programme includes case management forms and validated outcomes tools, along with Oasis for On Track, a cloud based database. The database and tools are flexible and able to work for all domestic abuse services including refuge, advocacy, community based support and helpline services.

National data and benchmarking

Services own their data and are able to report on a wide range of criteria in minutes. Using On Track, services also contribute anonymised information to the Women's Aid national data-set on the experiences and outcomes of survivors and their children. This will:

- Give the sector an evidence base for what works when supporting survivors to improve that support and make the most of scarce resources.
- Provide a national picture of domestic abuse service provision and survivors' needs and experiences to inform national policy making.
- Provide benchmarking, regionally and nationally, to show how local services compare to the average.
- Benefits from our decades of experience in data collection and analysis.

On Track is just one of the wide range of national data sources held by Women's Aid adding to our detailed knowledge of services and providers and benefiting from our decades of experience in collecting and analysing data.

This snapshot is taken from On Track's national dataset and covers women supported by 25 services using On Track between 1st April 2016 and 31st March 2017.

For more information about the On Track programme please visit our website:

www.womensaid.org.uk/what-we-do/ontrack

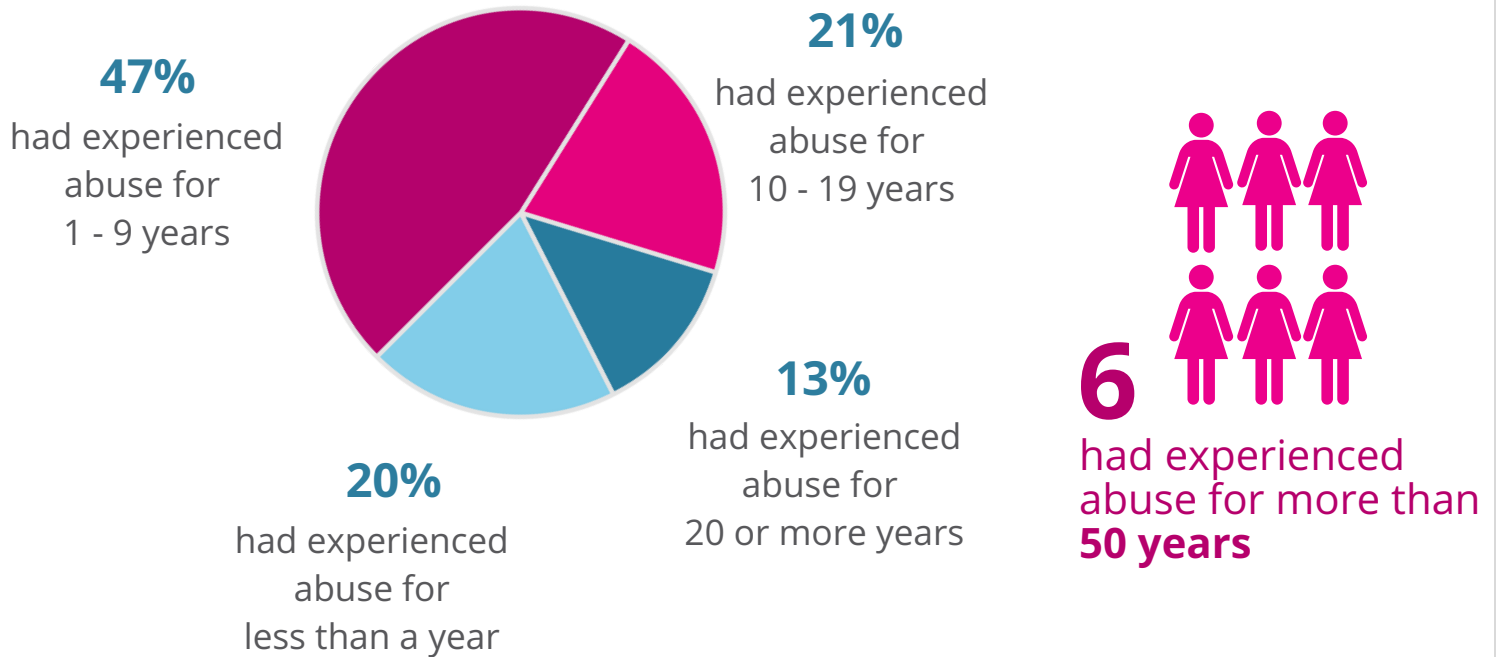

On Track: The Women's Aid
Outcome Measurement System

Understanding domestic abuse: findings from On Track

Women's experiences of abuse

Out of 1,217 survivors:

9,396 perpetrators were recorded for 8,587 women:

1 in 10 women had more than one perpetrator

5,809 survivors told us that they had experienced:

On Track: The Women's Aid Outcome Measurement System

Understanding domestic abuse: findings from On Track

Survivor support needs

Of 10,451 survivors supported across all services:

had mental health support needs

had 2 or more vulnerabilities had physical health support needs

were pregnant

On Track users delivered over 100,000 hours of support

Survivors received, on average 13 hours of support

Of 1,428 survivors in a refuge

Of 2,715 survivors in an IDVA service

33%

needed support with immigration status

19% needed support to re-establish relationships with family & friends

23% needed support with child contact

25% needed support with debt

On Track: The Women's Aid Outcome Measurement System

Understanding domestic abuse: findings from On Track

Outcomes

888 survivors reported
1,064 incidents
to the police*

What happened to the perpetrators?

30%

restraining order granted

24%

community sentence/compulsory perpetrator
programme

9%

custodial sentence

Of 7,436 survivors leaving a service in 2016-17*

Based on 1,929 women leaving domestic abuse services

Survivors said:

91%

were better able to recognise abusive behaviour

90%

felt more confident asking for help when they need it

To find out more about the On Track programme
Visit: www.womensaid.org.uk/what-we-do/ontrack or email us: ontrack@womensaid.org.uk

On Track: The Women's Aid
Outcome Measurement System